Protect All

I'm guilty. I have used Pledge to do a quick clean at some event or road test. I'll spare you the disclaimers and other legalities and its effectiveness. Much preferred, from actual results is Protect All. They make several products which have been endorsed by Rider, Road Rider (former name), the Blue Knights, airplane clubs, motorhome clubs - you get the picture. My use has been limited to their aerosol cans that clean, polish, wax and protect all surfaces. Use it side by side with Pledge and you be the judge. In my opinion, nothing protects like paste wax. But for those times when it isn't practical or for first cleaning the bike prior to wax, it works as advertised, especially on black trim where wax turns white. Be certain to keep it and all such chemicals away from calipers. I've even used it on my five year old Corbin seat - without slipping off!
